The Three-Column Principle

In Switzerland, provision for old age, disability and death is taking place on several levels, and in the context of various interrelated social insurance systems.

1st column

Mandatory old-age, survivors' and disability insurance (AHV and IV). These two insurances cover the basic subsistence needs of the insured persons in old age or in the event of disability. In case of death, the AHV pay benefits to survivors.

Since in practice actual pensions often fall short of this goal, the government provides supplementary benefits, i. e. need-based additional allowances to recipients of AHV and IV benefits. AHV and IV are general pension schemes for anybody residing or working in Switzerland.

2nd column

Industrial insurances (employee pension funds) aim to maintain the recipients' accustomed standard of living.

The law (BVG) provides for a mandatory minimum solution according to which contributions are levied from income up to a certain ceiling to save up retirement capital and to cover risk protection.

In practice, many companies offer more comprehensive pension schemes since the mandatory minimum amounts do not suffice to achieve the target level of benefits.

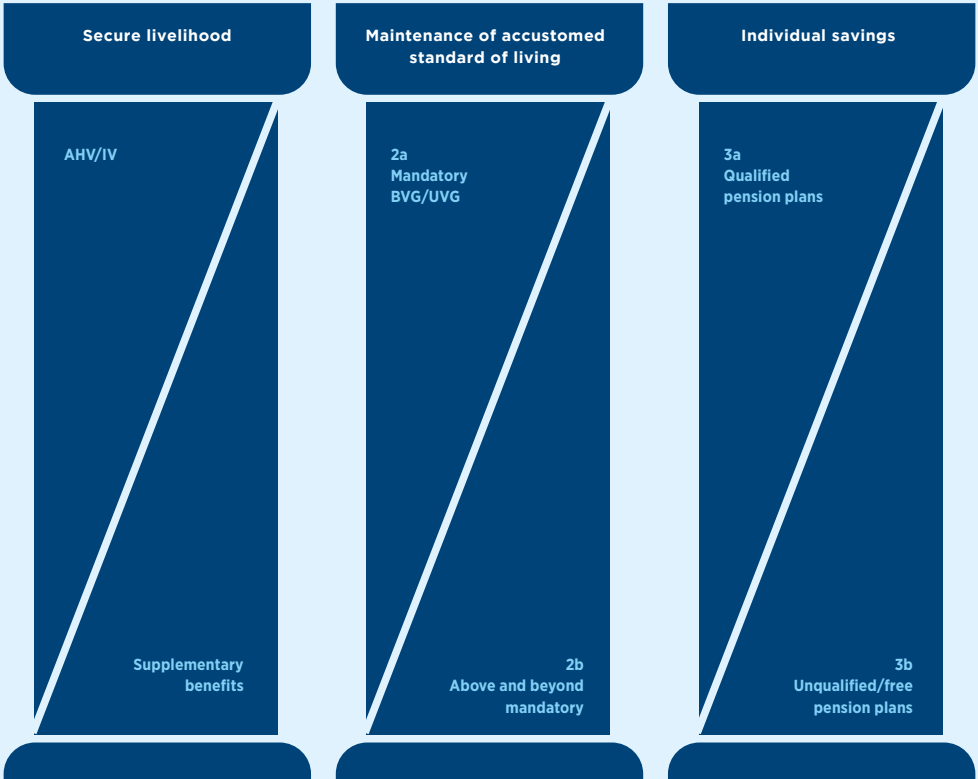

3rd column

To supplement the government's pension schemes, individual investment in private savings plans offered by banks or insurance companies is encouraged. Incentives include tax deductibility of contributions to so-called qualified savings plans, i. e. where funds cannot be accessed freely (column 3a).

Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance

In principle, the AHV/IV pensions are adjusted at two-year intervals to the trend of the mixed index which corresponds to the arithmetical mean of the wage and price indexes. The Federal Council raised the AHV and IV pensions as well as the minimum living allowance under supplementary benefits for the last time on 1 January 2019.

Purpose

To secure the minimum subsistence needs when income from gainful employment ceases because of old age or death.

Persons insured

All persons residing or working in Switzerland as well as (in special cases) individuals who are working abroad for a Swiss employer.

Basis for determining contributions

Employees

Total earned income (= all salaries and wages from employment). The employer settles contributions directly with the social security authorities.

Contributions may optionally be made on small items of income of up to CHF 2,300 annually (not applicable to domestic staff). For persons up to the age of 25 inclusive, contributions will only be deducted on request if the annual income does not exceed CHF 750 ("pocket money jobs").

Self-employed persons

Income from self-employment less the deductions prescribed by law. The contributions shall be calculated on the basis of the current income in the contribution year.

Employed AHV pensioners

AHV pensioners in active employment only pay contributions on that part of their earned income which exceeds CHF 1,400 per month or CHF 16,800 per year per employer. Any income above this limit is subject to AHV, IV and EO, but not ALV deductions.

Unemployed persons

The level of the contributions is calculated on the basis of the current pension income and the assets in the current contribution year. Women over 64 and men over 65 are exempt. For unemployed married persons contributions are considered paid if the wage-earning spouse pays at least double the minimum amount.

Education and care credits

Education and care credits are also imputed for pension calculation purposes. These credits constitute supplements to the pensionable income, but are not direct cash benefits. The claim to care credits must be made annually.

Financing/Contributions

Contributions to AHV, IV and EO are levied collectively and remitted as a single amount.

Employees

AHV	8.70 %
IV	1.40 %
EO	0.45 % (until 31. 12. 2020)
Total	10.55 %

Contributions to AHV, IV and EO are shared equally by employer and employee (5.275 % each).

Self-employed persons

AHV	8.10 %
IV	1.40 %
EO	0.45 % (until 31. 12. 2020)
Total	9.95 %

For earned income

- from CHF 56,900 to CHF 9,500 a declining scale from 9.950 % to 5.344 % is applied;
- below CHF 9,500 but not less than CHF 496 (AHV, IV, EO).

Unemployed persons

Contributions to AHV, IV and EO depending on assets and pension income (in CHF/year): minimum CHF 496, maximum CHF 24,800.

Public sources

Some 27 % of annual AHV revenue was financed by the public authorities in 2018. This amount consists of the Federal contribution, levies on value-added tax revenue and money raised by the casino tax.

Insurance benefits (selection)

Annual ordinary pensions for insured parties with a full contribution period from age 64 (women) or from age 65 (men).

Pension type	min. CHF	max. CHF
Old-age pension	14,220	28,440
Both pensions of a married couple		42,660
Widow's and widower's pension	11,376	22,752
Orphan's and child's pension	5,688	11,376
Full orphan's and double child's pension	8,532	17,064
Allowance for incapacitation (in the home or at home) minor/medium/severe	2,844/7,116/11,376

Anticipated withdrawal or deferment of the retirement pension

In the context of flexible retirement women and men can draw their retirement pension

- 1 or 2 full years earlier (no individual months possible), or
- defer the withdrawal of the pension for 1 to 5 years at maximum.

The reduction for early drawing of the retirement pension is 6.8% for one year and 13.6% for two years. Upon deferment of the withdrawal the pension is increased by a monthly supplement (max. 31.5%). During the deferment, the pension may be taken, i. e. drawn, at any time by the beneficiary.

Predictions

To ensure that pension financing can still be guaranteed in future, the Federal Council submitted its explanatory statement on stabilisation of the AHV (AHV 21) to Parliament in summer 2019. The purpose of the submission is to maintain the level of pension benefits and safeguard the financial balance of the AHV. At the same time, it seeks to make the retirement age more flexible and give greater incentives to remain in employment for longer. The intention is for the reform to enter into force in 2022.

Disability Insurance

Purpose	(Re-)Integration of the insured persons into the workforce, securing the minimum living requirements of the disabled and their dependents.

AHV and IV Supplementary Benefits

Purpose

To cover the living requirements of Swiss residents receiving AHV and IV benefits.

Insurance benefits

Pecuniary benefits

Annual supplementary benefits equivalent to the difference between spending recognised by law and imputable income.

Within the framework of recognised expenditure, in the case of persons living at home the vital minimum is as follows:

For single persons	CHF	19,450
For married couples	CHF	29,175
For orphans	CHF	10,170
For the first two children, each	CHF	10,170
For two further children, each	CHF	6,780
For each further child	CHF	3,390

In general, these limit values are increased by the amount of the cantonal average basic health insurance premium.

Benefits in kind

Reimbursement of illness and disability costs to the extent that these are not already covered by an insurance.

Financing/Contributions

Supplementary benefits are financed by the federal and cantonal authorities.

Disbursement

Disbursement of supplementary benefits is handled by the cantons. Registration for benefit payments is made at the branch of the cantonal equalisation scheme at the place of residence (except for ZH canton: local authority offices; BS canton: Amt für Sozialbeiträge; GE Canton: Service des prestations complémentaires (SPC) (Supplementary Benefits Service).

Predictions

The supplementary benefits reform was adopted by Parliament in spring 2019. The limitation of the 2nd pillar capital withdrawal which had been discussed will not be implemented. One new feature is the possibility of remaining insured with the existing pension scheme after the age of 58. The new provisions are expected to enter into force in 2021.

Occupational Old-Age, Survivors' and Disability Benefit Plan

The minimum interest rate for the year 2020 is 1.00 %. For termination benefits, interest on arrears is charged at the rate of 2.00 %.

Purpose

To secure the accustomed standard of living (in conjunction with benefits from AHV/IV). BVG requirements constitute the legally stipulated minimum benefits (column 2a). In practice, more comprehensive pension plans are offered (column 2b).

Persons insured

Mandatory

- Employees with annual wages of over CHF 21,330 (only for risk of death or disability for 18- to 24-year-olds, also for old-age benefits in the case of individuals older than 24)
- Unemployed persons with a daily allowance of at least CHF 81.90 are insured for the risks of death and disability

Voluntary

Self-employed individuals and employees who are not obliged to contribute to the scheme.

Basis for determining contributions

Coordinated annual wages = insured wages (corresponds to AHV wages less coordination deduction of CHF 24,885).

AHV wages which have to be considered

lower limit	CHF	21,330
upper limit	CHF	85,320

Coordinated wages

lower limit	CHF	3,555
upper limit	CHF	60,435

For unemployed persons: daily remuneration which has to be considered

lower limit	CHF	81.90
upper limit	CHF	327.65

coordination deduction from daily remuneration	CHF	95.55
--	-----	-------

Coordinated daily remuneration

lower limit	CHF	13.65
upper limit	CHF	232.10

Financing/Contributions

The mandatory employee old-age pension is financed by contributions from the insured and his or her employer. The law does not stipulate specific contribution rates, but only the amount of savings to be credited to the insured persons' pension accounts. At the time of retirement the savings capital is used to finance pension benefits. The employer pays at least half of the total contributions. Depending on the individual pension fund regulations, uniform or age-related contributions may be levied.

Age	Credits to pension savings accounts in % of the insured wages
25 to 34	7.0 %
35 to 44	10.0 %
45 to 54	15.0 %
55 to 64/65	18.0 %

The BVG contribution for unemployed persons (death and disability risks) amounts to 0.25 % of the coordinated daily wage and is payable in equal shares by the unemployed person and by the unemployment insurance fund.

The contributions for risk coverage, security fund and administrative expenses together amount to an average of between 3 % and 4 % of the insured wages. Total contributions: on average around 16 % of the insured wages or around 10 % of the AHV wages. Individual contributions depend on the age of the insured person and on the regulation of the occupational benefits scheme.

Insurance benefits

Old-age pension

6.8% of the retirement savings existing for the insured person at the time when his or her entitlement begins.

Disability benefits

6.8% of the savings capital available at the beginning of the insured person's pension eligibility, as well as the credits for the years missing until age 64 (women) respectively 65 (men), without interest, based on the insured wages at the time the disability occurred.

Spouse's pension

60% of the old-age or full disability pension. A registered partner of either gender is treated in the same way as a widower or a widow.

Child's and orphan's pension

Children of retired, disabled or deceased insured individuals receive a pension amounting to 20% of the old-age or disability pension.

Form of benefits

Old-age, survivors' and disability benefits are generally paid out in the form of pensions. The insured person may ask for one quarter of his or her retirement savings to be paid out as a single lump sum.

Cost of living adjustment

Survivors' and disability pensions paid out since 2016 by the compulsory second pillar will be adjusted to the price trend for the first time on 1 January 2020. The adjustment rate is 1.8%. Pensions that were paid out for the first time in the years 2010, 2013 and 2014 will be adjusted by 0.1%.

Home ownership subsidy

Federal legislation on home ownership financing through employee pension plans stipulates that insured individuals may withdraw parts of their termination benefits to purchase a home. Similarly, for the same purpose they may pledge that amount or their claim to pension benefits. If an insured individual withdraws parts of his or her termination benefits, the pension benefit claim is reduced accordingly.

Termination benefit

Upon change of employment the savings capital will be transferred to the new employer's pension fund. The termination benefit falls due when the person concerned leaves the pension fund. From that time onwards, it will bear interest at the minimum rate stipulated in BVG (1.00%). If the pension fund fails to transfer the termination benefit within 30 days of receiving the necessary information, the sum concerned will bear interest on arrears from that date onwards as stipulated in Art. 7 FZV (2.00%).

Divorce

In principle, the termination benefit acquired during a marriage will be divided into two. The date on which the divorce proceedings are opened is used as the determining time for the calculation. If a spouse is disabled or has already retired, the theoretical termination benefit is used as the basis or the pension will be divided and converted into a lifelong pension for the entitled spouse.

Purchase in column 2b

The purchase conditions provide for the inclusion of any capital sum saved in column 3a for the purpose of calculation of the maximum possible purchase. A calculation must be made in every case to determine whether the savings capital in column 3a exceeds the maximum permitted value assigned to the particular year of birth of the insured person (see table below).

The excess sum will be deducted from the possible purchase (see also Art. 60a BVV 2). The maximum permitted 3a savings capital amounts:

Year of birth	Status on 31 December 2019	Status on 31 December 2020
1962 and earlier	280'737	290'370

1995	0	6'826

The values are to be interpolated when calculations are made for less than a full year.

Predictions

After the retirement pension proposal 2020 has been rejected, the Federal Council invited the four central associations of the social partners to draft a joint proposal for BVG (Federal Pensions Act) reform. A compromise proposal supported by three associations was presented in summer 2019. The plan is to reduce the minimum BVG conversion rate to 6.0% accompanied by measures to offset the resulting loss of benefits (in particular, halving of the coordination deduction, adjusted pension credits and a pension supplement financed on the basis of solidarity). The social partners hope that the reform can be brought into effect by 2022 at the latest.

Column 3a (Qualified Fiscally Privileged Pension Schemes)

Purpose

Encouragement of investment in private savings plans in addition to the first two columns. Up to a certain amount contributions to column 3a can be deducted from the taxable income.

Saving schemes

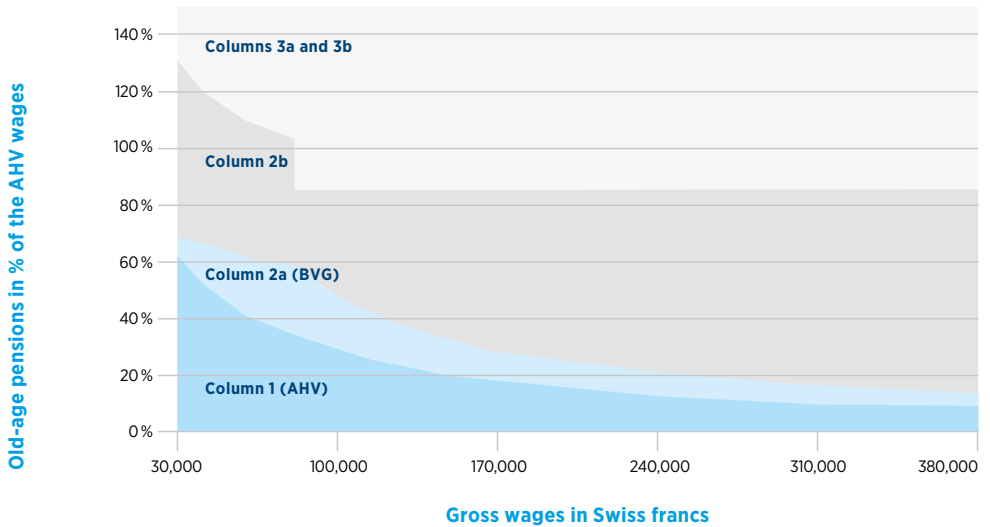

Bank savings and insurance policies. The maximum annual deduction is:

Assessment year	Normal deduction (with 2nd column)	Self-employed persons (without 2nd column)

This deduction can be applied to both the direct federal tax and the cantonal income tax.

If gainful activity continues beyond the ordinary AHV retirement age, benefit savings may at the same time also continue in column 3a. The continuation of benefit savings is permitted for a maximum of five years beyond the ordinary retirement age.

Interplay of the three columns (old-age pensions)

The graph above shows the old-age pension in consideration of the principle of adequacy in column 2b.

Unemployment Insurance (ALV) and Insolvency Compensation

Purpose	Appropriate compensation for loss of earnings, prevention of threatening unemployment and measures against existing unemployment, together with promotion of integration into the labour market.
Persons insured	All employees liable for AHV contributions up to ages 64 (women) and 65 (men) as well as certain non-wage-earning individuals.
Basis for determining contributions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - regular contribution: earnings liable for AHV, subject to a maximum of CHF 148,200 - solidarity contribution: income components from CHF 148,201
Insured wages	Earnings liable for AHV, subject to a maximum of CHF 148,200. Earnings on which the solidarity contribution is levied and earnings from labour market measures financed by the public authorities are not insured.
Financing/Contributions	2.2% of earnings subject to AHV each year up to CHF 148,200 and 1% of the income components from CHF 148,201 of earnings subject to AHV (solidarity contribution); one half of the contribution is payable by the employer and the other half by the employee. The insurance is also financed by income earned on the assets of the equalisation fund. In addition, the federal authorities contribute to the costs of intermediation and labour market measures.
Persons exempt from contribution	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - members of a farmer's family working on the farm, who are considered self-employed for purposes of family benefits - women and men after the beginning of the month following completion of their 64th respectively 65th year of age - employers for continued payments of wages to the above persons - unemployed persons who receive an unemployment allowance and the unemployment scheme for the corresponding employer's share

Unemployment compensation

Amount:

- (full) daily allowance of 80 % of the insured wage, together with children's and training allowances, provided that there is not already another entitlement to allowances for the child
- daily allowance of 70 % for insured persons without children up to the age of 25, non-disabled insured persons and insured persons with a full daily allowance in excess of CHF 140

Duration:

- max. 200 daily allowances (DA) (contribution period of not less than 12 months, below the age of 25, no children)
- max. 260 DA (min. 12 months contribution period, above the age of 25)
- max. 400 DA (min. 18 months contribution period)
- max. 520 DA (min. 22 months contribution period and over the age of 55 or drawing an IV pension with IV degree of more than 40 %)
- max. 90 DA (exempt from contributions)

Waiting times: 0-120 days.

Short-time employment compensation

80 % of the imputable loss of earnings for a maximum of 12 accounting periods within 2 years.

Bad-weather compensation

80 % of imputable loss of earnings for a maximum of 6 accounting periods within 2 years.

Insolvency compensation

Wages due for the last four months of employment, before bankruptcy, together with any wage entitlement for work done after opening of bankruptcy proceedings, subject, however, to a maximum of CHF 12,350 per month.

Labour market measures

- educational measures (courses)
- employment measures, including refund of costs to the organisers of employment measures
- special measures (induction subventions, commuting costs and contribution to weekly subsistence costs, training subventions, promotion of self-employment)

Predictions

In autumn 2019, the Federal Council adopted the explanatory statement and the draft of a new Federal Act on bridging benefits for elderly unemployed persons. By doing so, it intends to close a gap in social security. Persons whose unemployment insurance ceases after their 60th birthday are to receive a bridging benefit until the ordinary retirement age if they were previously in employment to a substantial extent and have few assets.

Compensation for Temporary Loss of Income / Maternity Insurance

Purpose	Partial cover of loss of earning e. g. during military, civil defence and civilian service (compensation for loss of earning, EO) and maternity (maternity benefits).
Persons insured	See AHV (page 3).
Financing/Contributions	Contributions (basis: AHV) and resources from the equalisation fund under the EO. The contribution on earned income is 0.45%. Contributions are levied on a diminishing scale. Persons who are not in active employment pay a contribution of between CHF 21 and CHF 1,050 per year.

Beneficiaries

Maternity allowance

- women who are in employment, self-employed or unemployed at the time of childbirth
- women who draw daily allowances for incapacity due to illness, accident or disability at the time of childbirth
- women who are in an employment relationship at the time of childbirth but do not receive any continuing wages or daily allowances because their entitlement has been used up

Insurance benefits

Basic allowance (irrespective of civil status and employment activity) in CHF/day:

Financing/Premiums	Occupational accident insurance Payable by the employer: amount of the premiums depending on the risk (branch of the economy) concerned. Insurance for non-occupational accidents Charged as a rule to the employees: the premium sum depends on the branch of the economy.
Insurance benefits (selection)	Key material benefits: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - medical treatment (outpatients and inpatients) - aid devices - travel, transport and rescue costs Key pecuniary benefits (save where otherwise stated as percentage of insured wages): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - daily allowances (max. 80) - IV pension (for complete disability max. 80) or settlement - survivors' benefits: pension or settlement for the spouse (pension: 40) and divorced spouse (pension: 20); pensions for orphans of one parent (15); pension for orphans of two parents (25) - compensation for incapacitation: monthly CHF 812 to CHF 2,436 - allowance for damage to integrity: depending on severity of damage max. CHF 148,200

Health Insurance

The Federal Office of Public Health (FOPH) states that compulsory health insurance premiums for adults will rise by an average of 0.2% in 2020. The BAG website (www.priminfo.ch) provides a premium calculator to compare all the approved basic insurance premiums which are available.

Purpose	Coverage of treatment costs for illnesses, accidents (in excess of accident insurance coverage), as well as maternity.
Persons insured	All persons residing or working in Switzerland.

General Part of the Social Insurance Legislation

The ATSG unifies concepts and procedures within the framework of social insurance law (with the exception of occupational benefits), coordinates benefits and regulates redress against third parties. This law stipulates in particular that a registered same-sex partnership is to be equated with marriage, the dissolution of a partnership by the courts with divorce and the surviving person with a widow or widower upon the death of his or her partner. This law is applicable if and to the extent that the individual social insurance laws so provide.

Bilateral Agreements

Since 1 January 2017, the agreement on freedom of movement between Switzerland and the European Community has been extended to the new Member State Croatia. During a transitional phase lasting for not more than seven years, special provisions including restrictions under employment law and maximum numbers will apply to Croatian citizens.
